LEETONIA, Dec. 29.—Completed recently at a cost of $186,000, the new Leetonia consolidated school building will be dedicated at ceremonies at 8 p. m. Thursday in the school auditorium.

The new structure will be occupied by students of the six upper grades of the consolidated school district on Jan. 3 following the holiday period.

The classes will include pupils of the seventh and eighth grades and the high school. The Leetonia district includes Leetonia and Washingtonville villages and the greater part of Salem township.

Address Scheduled

F. R. Naragon, superintendent, today announced that the dedication ceremonies will include an address by M. J. Almack of the state department of education, Columbus, and music by the high school band.

Started one year ago as a PWA project, the school as it stands today answers Leetonia's long-time need for a modern educational plant. The new building is a 24-room structure, including 14 classrooms, laboratories, mechanical shops, home economics department, gymnasium, locker rooms and school officials' offices.

Construction of the school was scheduled to be completed by Dec. 1 of this year, but a delay due to causes over which the contractors had no control, resulted in postponement.

The new building replaces the old North Side school which had served Leetonia as a high school building since 1872. Temporary plans call for the old school to be abandoned, Supt. Naragon said.

Residents of the Leetonia consolidated district furnished $102,300

WILLOW VALE TO BE REOPENED

Thirty-three Pupils of Ash Ridge
School Will Go To Butler
Township Building

DAMASCUS, Dec. 29.—Goshen Township board of education, at a meeting in the high school building Tuesday night, decided to send the 33 Ash Ridge school pupils to Willow Vale school when classes resume after the holidays, Jan. 3.

The Ash Ridge one-room building was destroyed by fire Dec. 20.

The Willow Vale school is located three miles east of Damascus.

Although Willow Vale school is located in Butler township, it is in Goshen school district.

Mrs. Ivan Townsend will continue as teacher for the Ash Ridge pupils.

Board members said the school bus route would have to be revised somewhat. It is planned to have the bus come up from Valley on the Damascus-Valley road, retrace its route then, go north on the Georgetown road to Salem, thence west from Salem to Damascus on Route 62 and then to the school house.

A number of parents at the school board meeting last night.

The Willow Vale school, abandoned several years ago, is now being put in condition. Desk seats and a heating unit are being installed.

WHEN THERE'S TIME

Miss Perkins, secretary of labor, is latest to point out (in the labor department's annual report) that a third of the families of the United States have "incomes insufficient to meet the minimum requirements of their standard of living."

Raising the income of one third of the population is a general objective of the Roosevelt administration. No one quarrels with it, though many persons continue to exercise the privilege of doubting there ever will be a time when it will not be possible to say that one third of the population lacks income sufficient to meet the requirements of its standard of living.

In the meantime, as a kind of year-end question, how does government propose to keep track of its progress in assisting the sub-standard one third? The department of agriculture, for instance, reports the average village family has an income of $1,100, which seems too low. How high, though, would it have to be before the average village family would tell the government's fact gatherers that it had no complaint to make? When there's time, the goal should be defined.

HIS FINGER ON THE TROUBLE

Thunder about monopoly is believed to be forerunner of a storm over business in the near future. Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general, who has been hammering the administration's thunder sheets backstage, now breaks out with a declaration that monopoly is the sole cause of the recession.

Granted that Mr. Jackson has everything necessary to prove he's correct, certain incidental questions must be answered before the public will be able to understand what he means.

For instance, does he mean the undistributed profits tax, which penalizes small businesses, is one cause of recession?

Does he think agricultural control, which seeks to limit the supply of farm commodities, is a form of monopolistic practice? Does he have in mind the monopoly aspect of closed shop unionism?

So far, Mr. Jackson and the other monopoly thunderers have not talked about these other aspects of the monopoly theory. Rather, they have chosen arbitrarily one unpopular aspect of the economic structure and announced they have their finger on the trouble—a course of action which leaves much doubt of their intellectual integrity in thus dealing so confidently with a complex problem.

RUSSIAN LULLABY

The year 1937, which brought Soviet Russia to the 20th anniversary of its establishment, also was the year of its great purge. There is a significant trend of comment about the purge as the year ends.

It is comment to the effect something is disastrously wrong in Russia—something which can't be fixed. A former Russian diplomat, at the risk of his life, warns the world the Soviet Union has betrayed the confidence of workers. Eugene Lyons, Communist sympathizer who went to Russia on an "Assignment in Utopia," has written a book with that title about his disillusionment.

Executions of thousands of Russians by the government and exile of thousands more—for political "crimes"—are the unflinching sign of smoldering revolt which will grow, not subside, as the result of terrorism. Or can it be that the red masters have not heard what suppression does to a righteous cause?

The Russian lullaby of 1937 is the sound of bullets crashing into the skulls of men who risked their lives to give power to the autocrats who now murder them. Here is probably the year's most important event. It can prove to the masses, if they will try to understand it, that the only thing worth fighting for is freedom.

Political mastery has certain points of similarity whether practiced under the hammer and sickle, the swastika, or Old Glory. In its extreme form it may entail murder, but in a milder form it finds expression in refusal to recognize the opposition's viewpoint. Men who seek the power to dictate cannot be trusted to stay within bounds once they have seized power. They will do thereafter what they feel they must do to retain their power.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—Not many writing groups get along so swimmingly as the dramatic critics. Intimacy in their case does not inspire the axiomatic contempt. During the season they are thrown in close proximity many nights, not only in the theatre but for palaver between acts.

They disagree often over verdicts in print, but the only notable explosion among them was when the feud between Alexander Woolcott and George Jean Nathan geysered into Nathan's philippic in the old old Smart Set, entitled "The Seidetz Powder of Times Square."

The critics have many unwritten laws in their credo to which they rigidly adhere. For instance they, as a courtesy to the management, take their seats at least five minutes before curtain time. It's also a custom not to applaud, no matter their enthusiasm.

And never, never are they supposed to laugh. But Robert Benchley frequently cracks that one with a guffaw that shakes the rafters. The critics do not always wear evening clothes—save on auspicious occasions such as a Katharine Cornell or a Lunt and Fontanne opening.

Critic John Anderson usually attends a premiere with his wife, an accomplished art critic. Richard Watts squires his dotting mother, festooned with a spray of orchids. Nathan varies his companions, but mostly she is Lillian Gish, looking extremely gishish and aloof. Brooks Atkinson, of the Times, and John Mason Brown, of the Post, also escort their wives. The morning paper critics dart out about 15 minutes before the last curtain to beat the deadline, but the afternoon critics stay until the end—if they can bear it.

George Jean Nathan is the most obviously contemptible of shoddy showmanship of the guild. If the first act doesn't show promise, his two aisle seats are vacant the rest of the play. Consequently he has walked out on some turkeys this season. The Rialto has hung up the shortest runs on record. Talullah Bankhead's four-day headache, for instance. Two closed after the first night and any number did not last out their week. Nearly all legitimate offerings these days put up the closing notice with the opening, to take advantage of the Equity ruling regarding salaries for a week after suspension.

A mammoth New York establishment contemplates the purchase of an entire block adjoining, which will be razed and used exclusively for free parking for customers. It is the idea of a Pittsburgh department store and was highly successful.

Some of the editors are thinking of resorting to blasting to get Frank Sullivan, the humorist, out of Saratoga Springs. He went to his home town early this Spring for a week or so rest and has remained on and on, finally closing his New York apartment. Incidentally, the records show that more than 60 percent of the established writers living in New York 10 years ago have moved elsewhere.

I have been told that one of the sport writers on a tabloid was yanked before his chief the other day for starting off an article with "Irregardless." And even the meticulous Lucius Beebe spoke of something as "misfortunate." Brisbane on several occasions used prepositions instead of pronouns. One of my friendly but severe critics is a louty type on—as one might expect—a Boston paper. He takes me to task when my English tatters around the edge.

Recently he put me in the corner with a dunce cap for saying: "He came (at) about 3 o'clock." Naturally it is one or the other. And he reddened my outstanding ears with the truthful charge that I often preceded my past participles with "too" instead of "too much." Viz: "He was too (much) exhausted to speak." So, feeling guiltily no account, I piroqueted through a highbrow magazine article and found among other things: "The river on whose banks"—instead of the correct "on the banks of which." Also this: "Harvard's history." Instead of the "history of Harvard." In fact, there were so many derelictions, even to the untutored eye, that I felt better. After all, there are four stark grammatical lapses in Shakespeare's "As You Like It," and furthermore there is too much grammar in the world anyway.

Something went out of American life when the toothpick was Emily Post to oblivion. While it may be gauche to use in the open, I prefer the unashamed method to skulking behind a napkin and gouging away while the face is wreathed in a beautiful expression. Toothpicks from quills and sealed in tissue are as much a part of the meal in French restaurants as table wine. And every hotel in America had a supply in a little red glass at the exit of dining rooms 15 years ago. I rather hope toothpicks will come back. I'm aching to wear as a watch fob the one Uncle Alex bought at the St. Louis Fair—a dandy with a peephole showing Niagara Falls in the center, a toothpick at one end and an ear spoon at the other.

UNDERNOURISHMENT

UNDERNOURISHMENT of the infants is always associated with famine, war and abnormal economic conditions. If you have ever witnessed showings of pictures taken in war areas you have observed the pathetic appearance of young children and infants, suffering from lack of nourishment.

It is hard to believe that in a country such as ours with an abundant supply of food, there should be undernourishment in any form. Yet, many infants suffer from malnutrition or undernourishment.

In the majority of instances, this physical disability does not result from inadequate food, but it comes from the neglect of proper medical supervision and providing variety in the foods. Many breast-fed infants receive an inadequate amount of milk and nourishment because the nursing mother has an insufficient diet. Too little attention is given to the need of a well-balanced diet for the mother. When this is not provided, both the mother and child suffer the ill effect. Under such circumstances, the infant is sure, sooner or later, to become a victim of malnutrition or to develop other physical ailments.

Bottle Feeding
The child should be taken away from the breast as soon as any signs of undernourishment appear. With correct bottle feeding and the giving of supplementary foods, the malnutrition can be overcome.

Some infants are unable properly to digest and absorb their food. This may be because of some physical defect or a constitutional disorder. Immediate medical supervision is needed to prevent serious complications.

Although undernourishment may appear at any time during infancy and early childhood, it usually occurs during the early weeks of life. It should be suspected as soon as there is any loss in weight or failure of the infant to gain weight. It is important that the weight of an infant be carefully watched and every measure taken to insure gradual weight increase.

Lower Resistance
The danger in undernourishment is not so much in the loss of weight as it is in the lowering of the resistance of the infant to disease. During the first year of life the infant is susceptible to certain ailments. This danger is increased if undernourishment is present.

As I have indicated, the weight of an infant is our best index of its progress. As a rule, a healthy infant will gain from five to eight ounces a week. After the sixth month this gain is much slower, usually a weekly average of three ounces. Infant boys usually weigh about two pounds more than girls by the end of the first year.

Certain factors must be taken into consideration in all weight studies. But if the infant is 10 per cent below the average weight for its age, there must be a suspicion of some underlying disorder.

"GIVE HER WINGS" by MARIE BLIZZARD

SYNOPSIS
Julie Allerdice, 19-year-old daughter of Professor Allerdice of the Ramsey Preparatory School for Boys, intends to get herself engaged to Dr. Richard Jessup, the most eligible bachelor in the little town of Fayette, New York. Tommy Jessup, the doctor's younger brother, adores Julie, but he is still in college and Julie scorns him as a child. It wasn't that Julie just wanted to get married, but she couldn't face the appalling future of boredom of growing into her thirties like Millicent Dodd, who had nothing to fill her time but charitable enterprises.

CHAPTER III
Something that Julie would never in this world have admitted was a sympathetic twinge that stirred in her when Millicent Dodd came into her mind.
She wriggled into her scant elastic girdle, snapped the garters on her stockings and said defensively, "Millicent's had thirty-three years in which to get Dick and it's not my fault if she can't."
She slid her feet into black velvet sandals. They were beginning to look shabby, it was good that her organdie would cover them. She wouldn't have to wear shabby sandals after she was married. She held her breath while she pulled the orange frock over her head and the tight waistline slipped into place.
There was a succession of rattling groans, a creak and a cough in the drive followed by the screeching sound of an ancient car coming to an abrupt stop.
Julie tied a black velvet bow in her burnished hair and smiled experimentally in her mirror as Priscilla hurried herself toward the front door in the lower hall.
"Hello, Prissy, is the duchess ready?"
Julie heard Tommy Jessup's voice and made an angry moue.
"Poor Millicent!" she purred as she came down the stairs. "Is she really terribly ill, Tommy?"
Tommy didn't answer her at once.

The little car jerked into the drive leading to the club-house.

Apparently oblivious to all her golden loveliness, he regarded her quizzically with his crooked smile and one eye-brow raised in the way that annoyed her most.
"So the role is that of Gracious Lady," he murmured while he held the evening jacket that had been made out of her old black velvet.
"Not to you," she said shortly. "It would be a waste of time."
Tommy didn't deny it as they skinned the road lightly but noisily for six miles out to the country club.
The little car jerked—it wasn't the kind that swung—into the drive leading to the club-house. The dance had begun. The parking spaces filled. Knots of black-coats and white-fronts had gathered on the verandah. Most of the girls were still in the dressing-room. Julie was glad they arrived at the moment they did.
The early gossip session in the dressing-room was part of the evening's pleasure. The little ecstatic screams of recognition, or admiration, the under-current of excitement, the tingling feeling that something was going to happen just because there was an orchestra playing below and you wore your prettiest dress.
"Not that anything ever did happen unless you made it, Julie reflected with a tinge of bitterness while she fingered her hair.
Dorcas Holt moved over on the dressing-table bench to make room for Julie. "There's a new man," she said at once. No use wasting time on preliminaries when there was flash news.
"Somebody the Griffins brought along. Nita Twining says he's an aviator. Bill knew him at college and he's staying over at Clunesville." Clunesville was a small town slightly larger than Fayette eighteen miles distant. "He's going to start a flying school. Name's Waddell."
"Well?" Julie waited, no further elaboration being necessary.
"Not married. About thirty—old but good-looking in a hard way. Nita says he doesn't look quite a gentleman but you never can tell about aviators."
Julie said nothing. She was thinking of the ever-interesting, ever-exciting prospect of a new conquest. Swiftly, feeling very virtuous and a bit resentful, she put the thought from her. The girl who was soon to be "the doctor's wife," a dear and beloved bride, a leader in the younger married set, would hardly be interested in another man. Already she saw herself presiding at board meetings, giving little dinners before such dainties as this, giving advice to girls her own age. Kindly thoughtful, wise.
She got up suddenly and inclined her head in a gracious nod of farewell to Dorcas. Dorcas gazed after the departing organdie with a puzzled expression.
Pete Waddell saw that organdie figure coming down the stairs. His hard blue eyes followed it through the maze of the first two enclosures. Then he strode through the dancers and touched Tommy Jessup on the shoulder.
"May I cut, please?"
Before he relinquished her, Tommy looked at Julie inquiringly.
"Hello," she said brightly looking past Tommy into the blue eyes. Tommy bowed out, satisfied that Julie knew the stranger.
"Wasn't that a trifle bold?" she said to the hard shoulder.
He pressed her close. "Only human," he said. "I wanted to dance with the tiger lily. Want an introduction?"
Julie strained away from that embrace. "I know who you are. You're the Griffins' aviator. How do you aviate? I mean are you a mail pilot, a transcontinental pilot or what?"
"The little girl is romantic and she's been reading story-books," he grinned. "I'm a plain barnstormer. I've got a little plane over at Clunesville and I'm opening a flying school. How would you like to learn to fly?"
"Drumming up trade?" she inquired coldly. She could see why Nita thought he wasn't quite a gentleman.
"Why not?" he answered easily. "Only a hundred dollars for twelve lessons. Think it over. There's a great future in flying for beautiful girls. Opens the road to fame and fortune and all that."
For one brief moment a picture flashed into her mind. A great future in flying for a beautiful girl. Her mind clicked over it like a camera shutter.
Almost instantly her attention was fixed elsewhere.

HOLD EXERCISES AT GREENFORD

Lutherans Present Interesting Christmas Program

GREENFORD, Dec. 29.—The Lutheran church was well filled Sunday evening for the Christmas service which consisted of recitations and exercises by the primary and junior classes, several numbers and instrumental music by the young folks and a pageant, "The Light Has Come."
Honoring their mother, Mrs. Millicent Clay, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clay entertained friends from Salem and Greenford at a chicken dinner. A birthday cake baked by her granddaughter, Martha Clay, and decorated by 71 lighted candles, was placed before the grandmother in the center of the table.

of the money needed to build the school by passing a bond issue. The remaining sum was provided by the Public Works Administration of the Federal government.

The new building is considerably larger than the old one and will require the addition of three new teachers to the school staff.

One of the remarkable features of the new school is that it offers Leetonia students a physical education department and a fine gymnasium for the first time in the village's history.

The school will now be able to support a basketball team, something hitherto impossible because of the lack of a gymnasium, and will be able to give students up-to-the-minute courses in physical education.

Present members of the board of education of the Leetonia school district are E. Walter Berg of Washingtonville, president; Dr. H. C. Brillhart of Leetonia, vice-president; L. J. Davis of Washingtonville and D. F. Grappy and Oscar Calladine of Leetonia. Willis Peet is clerk.

White Rajah Marks 20th Year

Two events combine to focus the spotlight anew on the only white rajah in the world and one of the few remaining absolute rulers. Sir Charles Vyner Brooke of England is celebrating the twentieth anniversary of his reign. He has also been recently publicized because of his younger daughter, Princess Valerie, who just married a wrestler against her parents' wishes. Sir Charles is the third of a line to reign over the Borneo province which includes some 50,000 square miles and has about 500,000 inhabitants. The Brooke family inherited their domain in 1841 when an adventurous member of the family obtained the concession in return for services rendered in behalf of the native sultan.

"Bartered Bride" Returns Home

Virginia and Margaret Gozmannian

A modern version of the tale of the bartered bride came to a conclusion when 14-year-old Margaret Gozmannian, right, arrived in New York with her sister, Virginia, 12, after having nearly been forced to marry a 40-year-old French farmer to whom she had been "sold" by her uncle for $135. When her parents returned to United States, leaving her in custody of an uncle in France, he allegedly made the marriage deal with a neighbor, but appeals of the child to the American Aid society resulted in her rescue.

tures, $015,652,371.62; gross debt, $37,273,064,305.42, an increase of $5-042,255.04 above the previous day.

Reports To U. S.

LISBON, Dec. 29.—A secret report on the activities of three alleged Communist agents in the country was forwarded to the department of justice Tuesday by Prosecutor Karl Stouffer. The report concluded a week's investigation conducted by Legionnaires at the prosecutor's request.

At Welfare Rally

LISBON, Dec. 29.—Probate Judge H. W. Hammond and County Commissioner Conrad Berg are attending a welfare meeting in Columbus today. Aid for dependent children and blind assistance are among the matters being discussed at the meeting.

BOSTON — Antonio Stradivari, who died two centuries ago, got only the present day equivalent of $90 for making the violin that Jascha Heifetz used in his concerts. But Heifetz today values the instrument at $60,000. He estimates that his "Strad" still will be yielding its golden tones 150 years hence.

Extra Service

DETROIT, Mich.—From 1 to 5 a. m. on the first day of 1938, Fred A. Nolan said, "there will be a lot of people who will not feel like walking any farther than necessary."

And there'll be motorists who won't want to drive home from a party.

So Nolan, general manager of Detroit's street railway and motorbus system, announced that, between the hours mentioned, "all our buses will go right to the door of any passenger who lives on a paved street not more than two blocks off the regular route."

The service will not include ringing doorbells.

Settle Sheep Case

COLUMBUS, Dec. 29.—Common Pleas Judge Cecil J. Randall approved yesterday settlement of a $760 attachment suit brought by Edward C. Turner of Columbus against Ray E. Ross and Harold G. Riley for sheep they allegedly stole last month.

I Hereby Promise

Judge Palmer released them all.

CONCORD, Mass.—Small wonder that the Concord Minute Men of 1775 were able to rout His Majesty's British regulars. A manual of arms used by the British Army at that time and uncovered by a local antiquarian, reveals that before firing his flintlock, the Red Coat received 16 separate commands from his officer and executed 49 distinct motions.

Shasteen-Sinclairs Record Third Win To Remain In Tie For Class-A Cage Lead

SINCLAIRS TOP MOOSE FOR 3RD COURT VICTORY

Mullins Chalks Up First Win By Defeating Columbians

The battle for first place in the Class A City Basketball league was still a deadlocked affair today after Shasteen's Sinclair Service Station quieted chalked up its third win at the Memorial building last night to remain tied with the Althouse Dodgers.

The Sinclairs trampled the Moose beneath a 30 to 16 lacing to remain in a tie for the lead. Frank Culler and Eddie Pukalski shared scoring honors for Shasteen's with seven points apiece. Gordy Scullion and Delmar Schaffer each contributed six points to the Sinclairs victory.

Showing the same splendid ball-handling and clever floor work as they did last week when they handed Mullins the worst beating any Class A team has received to date, the Sinclairs had the Moose at their mercy throughout the contest.

The Shasteen quint held a comfortable lead at halftime and was in no danger of falling behind in the final two periods.

Mullins won the other Class A tilt last night, defeating the Columbians, 29 to 24, for their first victory of the season.

Mike Linder and Cliff Greenstein led the Bodymakers to their triumph, hoping eight points each. It was the Columbians third defeat in four starts.

Demings and Krauss' Heels gained victories in the two Class B games, the former edging the defending champion Methodists, 24 to 21, and the latter nosing out Whit's Garage, 14 to 12.

The Columbians are currently leading the Class B circuit with a record of four victories and no defeats. Bartchy led Demings to their win over the Methodists, scoring 12 points on six field goals. It was the Pumpmakers first win of the season.

Weigand, Krauss and Baker were the individual stars in the Krauss quintet's triumph over Whit's Garage.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Here are the latest odds on the various "Bowl" football games, fresh from James J. Carroll's price factory in St. Louis: California is rated seven points better than Alabama and the professional bookies are laying 8 to 5 against the Crimson Tide. Same odds prevail on Louisiana State over Santa Clara in the Sugar Bowl. Rice is figured 13 points better than Colorado at Dallas with the price 2 to 1 against Whizzer White and Co. Auburn and West Virginia are given three point margins over Michigan State and Texas Tech in the Orange and Sun Bowl games but the bookies are betting 4 to 5 and take your pick. You risk $5 to win $4 in these two games. Same figures go for the All East-All West game at San Francisco. Now write your own ticket.

Lou Gehrig (and the Mrs.) are on their way to Hollywood by motor for Lou's first movie. Jimmy Phelan of Washington is the latest to be mentioned for Harry Kipke's old Michigan job. Sammy Baugh is reported getting ready to demand $25,000 from the Washington Redskins next season, but, being a sensible young man, he'll gladly settle for $15,000. Sammy picks Alabama, Auburn, Rice, Santa Clara and West Virginia as Saturday's football winners. The open season for football coaches is on in full blast. Since the first of the month no less than nine important coaches have either resigned or been given the old heave-ho.

Lou Ambers, the lightweight champion, will make one New Year's resolution he means to keep — to stay away from Henry Armstrong's door. Harry Richards, our favorite jockey, says Pompoon is the greatest horse he ever rode. Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox will bet you even money the Yanks don't win the American League pennant next year. Says they're going to miss Tony Lazzeri, whom he calls the world's best at changing pitchers.

SIDELINE FANS RATE ALABAMA CHANCE TO WIN

Think Odds Favoring California In Rose Bowl Slightly Askew

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 29.—Having spent days taking the two teams apart to find out what makes them tick, sideline observers came to the conclusion today that betting odds favoring California over Alabama in the Rose Bowl are slightly askew.

Since the day the Golden Bears named the Crimson Tide as their foe in the New Year's day grid tussle, California has ruled the favorite.

Things have changed, and most of the so-called experts view the game as a toss up between Alabama's speed and accepted smartness, and California's power, superior weight and experience.

The Bears have more 200-pounders than the Tide. Here are the hand-out weights: California Pos. Alabama Dolman, 184. LE Shoemaker, 172. De Varona, 188. LG Ryba, 197. Evans, 178. LG Bostick, 195. Herwig, 203. C Cox, 189. Stockton, 185. RG Monsky, 197. Stoll, 188. RT Tipton, 188. Schwartz, 190. RE Warren, 181. Meek, 206. QB Cochrane, 184. Bottari, 175. LT Zivich, 176. Chapman, 185. RB Kilgore, 173. Anderson, 187. FB Holm, 168.

There they are, accurate or not. Secrecy is the keynote of practice with both Alabama and California working behind locked gates. Henry Sparks, reserve end, is still limping and the Bears may not be able to use him Saturday. From Alabama's hideout comes word that Captain Leroy Monsky's eye injury will be protected by a special mask.

5 LINKS STARS TIED FOR LEAD

Start Final Rounds In Hollywood, Fla., Open Golf Tourney

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Dec. 29.—The nation's touring par-crackers strode toward the $4,000 Hollywood Beach hotel open tournament playoff line today with five entries tied for the lead.

Here's how they lined up at the start of the 36-hole final stage of the tourney:

Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo., 67-71-138.
Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., 69-69-138.
Craig Wood, Rumson, N. J., 69-69-138.
Frank Moore, Mamaronock, N. Y., 69-69-138.

Those 138's, two under par for 36 holes, gave the five just a one stroke lead over three others, Dick Metz of Chicago, Willie MacFarlane of Hollywood and Bruce Coltart of Haddonfield, N. J.

Three more, Bill Heinle of Indianapolis, Denny Shute, PGA champion, and Sam Byrd of Philadelphia, former Yankee outfielder, were bracketed at the 140 notch, in easy striking distance.

Back of them the field was even more bunched, with six players—including Ralph Guidahl, the National Open champion—at 141, four at 142 and six at 143.

Sam Snead, West Virginia slugger, still hitting wild approaches and putting poorly, added a 71 yesterday to his opening 73 for a 144 total.

Bob Servis of Dayton paced the amateur field with a 146, four shots ahead of Charles Mayo, Jr., of New York.

TULSA, Okla.—A Hall of Science, showing the methods of obtaining refined oils from crude oil, together with their uses, will be a feature of the 10th International Petroleum Exposition here next year.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29.—The football fan who likes to "play" the game over again the minute he leaves the stadium has a chance to do it with experts in the mid-west.

Ohioans Performed Well In National Sport Realm During Past Year; Increased Attendance Is Trend

BY FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Dec. 29.—The year 1937 goes into the Ohio sports record books as one of the most spectacular in history.

The Buckeye realm furnished the field for some of the nation's better battles and fans in unprecedented numbers responded by laying their cash "on the line."

Illustrating the attendance trend: The 1937 state high school basketball tourney drew 25,335, breaking the record of 21,680 set in 1935 and topping the 1936 mark by 11,000.

Ohio State university's football team, beaten twice in eight starts, drew 399,683, eight thousand more than the year's day grid tussle, California has ruled the favorite.

The American association's attendance was 250,000 over 1936 and a half-million over 1935, with Columbus and Toledo grabbing a hefty portion of the baseball increase.

Golf banged back to the heights. The Inverness four-ball matches at Toledo drew close to 13,000 fans, the greatest throng in the three-year span of the classic. The state public links meet, generally witnessed only by players and caddies, attracted hundreds of spectators.

Horse-racing set an all-time high in wagers, Ohioans pouring almost $9,000,000 into the pari-mutuel, although only five running meetings were held.

The Grand American trapshoot at Vandalla, probably the only sports event in the world to charge admission in an attempt to cut down the number of spectators, found the folks willing to pay More than 10,000 witnessed the last day of heavy firing.

At least seven Ohioans wrote their names in the "national champion" list during the year. They are:

Dr. Hugh H. (Doc) Parshall, Urbana, the country's leading harness race winner with victories in 142 heats.

F. G. Carroll, Brecksville, Grand American trapshoot champion, with 100 of 100 score, the third perfect record in the 38-year-old classic.

Denny Shute, former Columbus youth, who retained the National Professional Golfers championship. Al Patnik of Ohio State university, national 10-foot board diving championship.

Dave Albritton, Ohio State, national high jump championship.

The Cincinnati Reds, after a pre-season promise, failed to get started and finished at the bottom of the National league, manager Charley Dresen losing his job. Bill McKechnie takes over the reins in 1938, and the Reds are slated to open the season with a new manager.

ILLINI SNAPS IRISH STREAK

Notre Dame's String of 19 Victories Ended By Illinois

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Notre Dame can go to work now on a new basketball victory string—with no thanks from the Fighting Irish to the fighting Illini of Illinois.

The Illini, playing their last game before opening defense of their share of the Big Ten title against Indiana Jan. 4, snapped Notre Dame's impressive 19-game winning streak last night by taking a 33 to 32 overtime thriller at Champaign.

The last previous Irish defeat was suffered last Dec. 19 on the same floor, 44 to 33.

The regulation time ended with the score tied at 30-all, forward Ed Sadowski of Notre Dame having forced the contest into overtime with a field goal in the last 30 seconds.

Louis Boudreau, Illinois' brilliant leader, then put his team in front with a long basket, and a free throw by Center Pick Dehner more than offset a one-handed goal by Earl Brown, Irish guard, in the final half-minute.

Illinois made it five victories in six starts this season by conquering the Irish who had won six of their 19 straight during the current campaign.

Indiana and Purdue emerged victorious in games on the west coast.

By defeating the University of Southern California, 46 to 43, Purdue won its seventh straight game of the season. It was California's first basketball defeat. The Californians led at halftime, 27 to 23.

In the other game at Los Angeles, Indiana downed the University of California, 42 to 33. The Hoosiers led at the half, 26 to 15.

Led by Paul Sokody, Marquette won 38 to 21, over Chicago at Milwaukee.

Purdue meets U. C. L. A. tonight while Indiana tackles Southern California. Minnesota resumes its eastern jaunt against New York university at Madison Square Garden, and Ohio State entertains California's touring five.

PANTHER COACH SLATED TO GET JONES' USC JOB

Colleges Do Not Deny Report that Sutherland Will Change Jobs

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 29.—The realm of the mighty Golden Panther of the University of Pittsburgh awaited today a reply from the man who boosted it to national prominence—taciturn "Jock" Sutherland—for an answer to a rumor he would resign as head football coach.

The story had been whispered here for weeks but Harry Keck, sports editor of The Sun-Telegraph, brought it into the open with a declaration that Sutherland "was reported to have lost favor with Chancellor John G. Bowman and other administrative officers" at the university's sky-scraper cathedral of learning.

Keck added he had been informed by a source he did not disclose that the canny Scot who came to this country an immigrant boy, and received his education and his opportunity to make good at the university "was virtually signed to succeed Howard Jones as coach at the University of Southern California beginning with the 1939 season."

Neither university would admit nor deny the report. Officials of the University of Pittsburgh would not comment. At Southern California it was pointed out that Jones' contract would not expire until March and that there would be no comment until then.

This left a reply to Sutherland, who was due last night in New Orleans, where Athletic Director James Hagan of Pitt previously had gone, to attend sessions of the national collegiate association and other groups.

In his 14 years at Pitt, Sutherland's mighty teams have bowled over many of the nation's outstanding eleven to amass a total of 103 victories, 18 defeats and 10 ties.

Bargains are plentiful. The ads will tell you where.

TOLEDO CAGERS GAIN 5TH WIN

Rockets Top Illinois Wesleyan; Reserve Red Cats Win

Two out-of-state basketball teams came to grief last night at the hands of Toledo university's Rockets and Western Reserve university's Red Cats.

The Rockets garnered their fifth straight victory by spanking Illinois Wesleyan university, 51 to 26. Reserve trounced Boston university, 58 to 44.

Charley Chuekovits, sizzling Toledo forward, connected for six goals and five charity shots to pace his quintet with 17 points. Morgan, Wesleyan center, paced his contingent with eight.

Toledo held a 22 to 12 intermission advantage.

Frank Kelker, dusky Reserve center, who was in action less than three quarters of the contest, looped 19 points against the easterners. Sol Nechem, all-around Boston athlete, piled up an individual total of 19 points also.

At half-time Reserve topped Boston, 26 to 21.

Year '37 Saw Few Industries Set High Production Records

By A. A. PATTON
Associated Press Statistician
NEW YORK — Although widely labeled a year which brought renewed slump, 1937 saw several industries set new high production records for the entire period, and others touch historic peaks in one or more months.

Groups topping all previous standards included:
Cotton textile manufacturers, one of the nation's largest employers, who turned out an estimated 9,000-600,000 square yards of cloth. This overshadows the previous high mark of 1927 by roughly 20,000,000 square yards, a relatively narrow margin.

Record Cotton Crop
Cotton farmers, aided by ideal growing weather, also did a record-smashing job. The 18,746,000 bale harvest forecast by the department of agriculture stands 770,000 bales above the prior banner year, 1926.
The electric branch of the utility business continued to ride roughshod over all precedent. Purring hydro and steam generators sent approximately 119,000,000 kilowatt hours of juice humming over the wires to homes and factories, compared with the 1936 record of 109,985,000,000 KWH.

The great petroleum industry counts 1937 a banner year. The crude oil estimated to have run from wells during the period is set in trade circles at 1,280,000,000 barrels. The previous year's aggregate was only 1,098,516,000 barrels.

Aviation, in many phases, pushed to new peaks. Cigarette consumption continued to show that new sources of smokers were still being tapped, each monthly production
vember, 1937.

World gold and silver production attained new peaks during the year. Also hanging up new records were treasury gold stocks—at $12,804,000-000—, demand deposits in the country's banks, and the government debt. The last was above $37,000-000,000 in 1929.

Shoe output, at 368,000,000 pairs, set another record, despite a sharp contraction in the final six months.

During the first five months of 1937 the steel industry turned out more ingots than it did at the crest of the greatest boom in history.
Output for those months was 24-580,000 tons, against 24-33,000 tons in the comparable period of 1929.

Demand Back Pay

STEBENVILLE, Dec. 29.—A demonstration by nearly 70 coal miners, demanding more than $4,000 in back pay they claimed was due them, was ended yesterday at Coal hill mine, near Bergholz, when Mine Superintendent George Bucy agreed to meet the miners at a County Prosecutor Hugo Alexander's office here today.

OPPORTUNITIES
Opportunities to buy to advantage are found daily in The News classified adv. columns.

Here and There -:- About Town

Praise Fire Department

Rev. John Guy, pastor of the Nazarene church, and his family, today expressed their gratitude to fire department members who were successful in saving the parsonage when fire destroyed the nearby McAllister paint shop on Christmas morning.

Rev. Guy feels it was the department's prompt response and work to his distress call that saved the parsonage from the menacing flames.

Band Dance Tonight

A large attendance is expected at the annual Salem High school band dance tonight in the High school gym.

Harry Hylan's orchestra will play for dancing from 8:30 to 11:30 p. m.
All alumni, students and guests are invited to attend. Tickets may be had from band members and will be on sale tonight at the door.

Reckless Driver Fined

Kenneth M. Hunt, whose address
